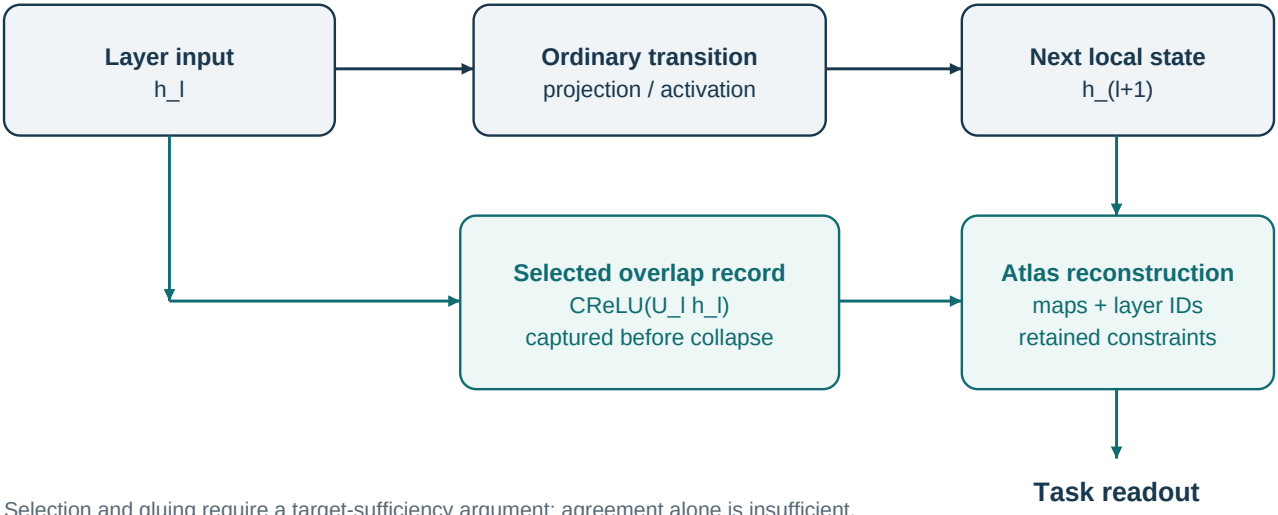
The protected record bypasses the operation that would erase its information.



Selection and gluing require a target-sufficiency argument; agreement alone is insufficient.